

Idea

My idea is based on an idea presented in the movie "Horton Hears A Who", that the universe we know is a small insignificant part of another universe. The main character lives in a small house and the viewer expects that this character is to scale of humans. However, once the camera zooms out the viewers see that this character's world is a small spec on a Fruit Loop cereal. Then the viewer can click the cereal spoon to make a human-sized character eat the cereal. Later, another character is revealed on the fruit loops as they descend into the human's stomach. The fruit loops serve as the ring object in my animation.
